

Historic Pennypacker Mills was the home of Pennsylvania Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker (1903-1907) and his family. The mansion is completely furnished with family heirlooms and includes many personal and official documents from his term in office. Set on 170 acres of farmland, the site represents a country-gentlemen's estate.

Tours of the Pennypacker mansion offer visitors a glimpse of the lives of this well-educated Pennsylvania family, the social and cultural times they lived in, and what servant life was like here. Visitors will tour through two floors of the mansion, including the Galleries where changing exhibits highlight life in the early 20th century.
